

Student Learning Outcomes for Agronomy Majors in the Bachelor of Science Program at Kansas State University

[As Revised by the Faculty of the Department of Agronomy – October 7, 2011]

Upon completion of the Bachelor of Science degree, Agronomy majors will have demonstrated:

1. Ability to think clearly and creatively and to apply critical thinking skills when evaluating information
2. Learning, developing, and applying skills for the application of existing and emerging knowledge and technologies in Agronomy
3. Competent application of scientific principles, quantitative skills, and other problem solving skills in Agronomy
4. Knowledge and application of ethical practices and recognize the relationships between science and society within a diverse society
5. Develop competent oral and written skills to foster positive interaction and effective communication within a diverse team